SPECIAL LABOR DAY PRESENTATION: SHROUD OF TURIN

If you've ever wondered how seriously we can take the Shroud of Turin, please join us on September 3rd after the 11:15am Mass. The Shroud of Turin is the subject of rumors, myths, and controversies—maybe you've heard some of them yourself and don't know what to believe. Fr. Robert Spitzer, a Jesuit scientist and scholar on the Shroud of Turin, offers some amazing facts about the Shroud, including what we can learn about the Crucifixion from what we see on the cloth. He also talks about the infamous carbon dating claims (they've been scientifically debunked).

HEALTH MINISTRY NOTES

School bells are ringing; it's time to establish morning and night routines to be sure everything flows smoothly! Packing lunches doesn't have to be painful. So what to pack for lunches? Here are some recommendations from the Department of Agriculture: a variety of fruits, vegetables, proteins, & dairy are needed in each meal. Whole fruits that are fresh, frozen, dried or canned in water work well in lunches. Juices should be 100% juice to reduce the amount of unneeded sugars. Raw vegetables are great in wraps or sandwiches or eaten dipped in dressing. Protein sources don't always have to be meat. Good sources also include beans, peas, nuts, seeds, eggs, peanut butter or humus. Trail mixes are also loaded with nuts & dried fruits adding variety to lunches. Dairy is important for everyone. Milk, yogurt or cheeses can add variety. Remember to set a good example. Packing your own lunch will help to avoid the sugary, salty, and trans fat snacks in vending machines. Have a safe & healthy school year!

THE SHROUD OF TURIN: "LIGHT OF THE SEPULCHRE"

EVIDENCE OF JESUS' RESURRECTION?

The Shroud of Turin is a burial shroud (a linen cloth woven in a 3-over-1 [3:1] herringbone pattern) measuring 14 feet 3 inches by 3 feet 7 inches. The cloth is believed to have traveled from Jerusalem to Turkey (Edessa & Constantinople) to France, where it is recorded to have surfaced in the hands of a nobleman in 1349. The Shroud has undergone far more scientific testing than any other relic in human history. All evidence points to it being the burial cloth of Jesus. A 1988 carbon-dating study concluded that the Shroud originated in 1260-1390 A.D. These findings have been scientifically debunked, & it is exceedingly improbable that the Shroud is a medieval forgery.

The material of the Shroud, the pollen grains on it and the image of the coins (minted in A.D. 29) on the man's eyelids all have their origin in first-century Palestine, the place where Jesus was purported to have died. There are no paints, dyes or other pigments on the Shroud (except for the small flecks coming from the sanctification of icons and paintings which touched it). The anatomical precision of the blood stains—which are real human blood that congealed on the Shroud before the formation of the image—are in precise anatomical correlation to the image itself. The blood stains come from a crucifixion event identical to the one described in the four Gospels - which was very unusual, if not unique in many respects: being crowned with thorns, flogged, and pierced with a Roman pilum (spear). The Shroud's image points to a trans-physically caused burst of vacuum ultraviolet radiation from a mechanically transparent body, suggestive of the transformation of Jesus' body from a physical one to a spiritual-glorified one (as reported by St. Paul and the four Gospels).

How could a medieval forger have duplicated those features? How could he have used vacuum ultraviolet radiation to discolor the cloth on the uppermost surface of the fibrils? How could he have created a perfect photographic negative image? Or a double image on the frontal part of the Shroud? How could he have known how to duplicate the interior and exterior of the hands in perfect proportion to each other?

The spiritual-glorified transformation of Jesus' body was unique to the Christian view of resurrection. It was not known in Judaism (which held to resuscitation of the flesh) or pagan cults (which held to ethereal or ghostlike views of immortality). Thus the Shroud's image points to the uniquely Christian view of resurrection implied by Jesus' risen appearance.

The odds of this first-century Palestinian burial shroud being that of anyone else is exceedingly remote. Inasmuch as the image is not a forgery, and that it originated from a real person living at the time of Jesus, crucified in the unique way of Jesus, and producing a burst of intense vacuum ultraviolet radiation from his decomposing body, who else would it be? Given all this, we might reasonably infer that the Shroud is the burial cloth of Jesus, which contains not only a relic of His crucifixion but also His resurrection in glory. If so, it shows both the truth of the most significant event in human history as well as the accuracy of the Gospel accounts of it.

The Shroud of Turin has been kept in the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist in Torino, Italy for more than 400 years. It is periodically available for public viewing.

Father Robert J. Spitzer, Ph.D. is a Jesuit priest, prolific author, host of EWTN "Father Spitzer's Universe." <https://www.simplycatholic.com/shroud-of-turin-evidence-of-jesus-resurrection/>
